- How We Play

WERE HERE

In this, our 1947 Pilot, we present no plan or pattern for the future. After the feverish and depressing war years, we are glad to take stock of the good things in life that have been salvaged, we hope, for all time. Making the most of our high school education is one of our highest aims. We desire that from our school experiences we may gain the wisdom necessary to take our places as citizens of the world.

THE magic of a Minnesota autumn is a part of our very school life. We thrill to the memories of the gaiety and variety of color that mark this season of pep fests, homecoming, and football heroes.

Where We Live

1450 Grantham Street

This is Murray, one of the ten high schools in the city of St. Paul. In fact we are the youngest—seven years old. Sheltered in a hollow amidst a lovely residential district, Murray gives us the friendly feeling so frequently found in small towns and communities. Some nine hundred of us students coming from twelve public and parochial schools interchange ideas and interests as the busy days of high school slip by all too quickly. There is the homework and the daily routine that sometimes trouble the best of us—but friendliness abounds, and that is what makes life rich and joyous. Yes, happiness is where one finds it, and we do find it at 1450 Grantham Street, the place where we live.

Dedication

"A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops."

True is this of Mr. Bernard Winkelman, Miss Elsea Peterson, Miss Marion Gratz, Mr. George Bergup, and Mrs. Ruth Eddy who have served as instructors at Murray High School since its junior days. Twenty-one years of working together have linked these friends in a common bond of service to the school and the community.

During the years many students have come to know each of these teachers as a friend to whom he can turn for wise council and understanding of the problems of youth. Teaching is more than classroom routine; the boy or girl is more important than the printed page. To these fine teachers to whom the gift of understanding others has been given in large measure, there is a deep sense of satisfaction for all the efforts that have been expended for those whom they taught.

Pleasant memories of the years together are recalled as these friends and co-workers watch the flickering fire. In honor of their years of service, in honor of the high ideals which are theirs, and with sincere appreciation for what they have given to Murray High School, we, the staff of 1947, dedicate this Pilot.

SO EARLY IN THE MORNING

How We Get Together

Their Responsibilities Were Many

- Jean Lewis, Quill and Scroll president, checks future plans while Miss Margaret Glenn, adviser, and Nancy Eyler, secretary, revise the minutes of the last meeting.
- An effective school police force depends upon both student and faculty cooperation. Pictured above are Lowell Munson and Mr. George Bergup drafting new plans and improvements.

- Recent territorial alterations are indicated on a globe by Mrs. Susie Sauber and Miss Virginia Fertig previous to a class discussion concerning the changing world order.
- Counting money is one of the more pleasant tasks for the "M" Club secretary-treasurer. Here Joseph Horvath checks over his accounts with Mr. Ralph Engebretson.

- The art of properly interpreting music is shown to Sandra Granovsky, student choir director, by Helen McGeever, music instructor.

... But They Fulfilled Them

- Miss Marion Gratz, librarian, lends a helping hand to Paul Mielke and Robert Eyre as they arrange one of the interesting exhibits in the display case.
- Leisure moments are few and far between for Student Council members. Pictured here are Carl Johnson, Louise Weigt, and Mrs. Ruth Eddy as they look over activities of other schools.

- Mrs. Helene Becker, Book Store adviser, learns the finer points of the new rocket pen from Donald Hanson, manager.

- Checking basketball equipment before a G.A.A. game are Mrs. Inez Gugisberg, adviser, and Janice Christopherson, president.
- Needy children of Europe received gift boxes this winter from the Murray Red Cross Chapter. Helen Jansen and Astrid Haugan assist Mrs. Agnes Smith, adviser, in sorting goods to be mailed.

Scenes Students Remember

- Miss Catherine Daly's office is a busy place every morning. Bette Clipper, Miss Daly, Beverly Swan, and Miss Louise Pedersen check over the day's attendance.
- It is not beginner's luck for Marlene Cramer and Delores Moberg as they make rolls under the watchful eye of Mrs. Lenore Hansen, home economics teacher.
- Part of each teacher's daily routine is a trip to the office box. Here Miss Mabel Surratt collects her morning mail.
- Discussions in Mr. Alden Goodwin's classes are often led by civic-minded students. A heated argument on military conscription is started by Jean Frenning, Jack Murdock, and Marjorie Wetterstrom.
- One of the most interesting courses at Murray is the second year transcription. Students are taught to transcribe and type shorthand notes with the assistance of Miss Valborg Helseth.

Geniuses at Work

Pilot Staff. That is the name given to the above group of eager but overworked editors. They are the ones who suffer nightmares, bad indigestion, and writers' cramps to present you with this better-than-ever annual. He who takes the Pilot for granted should visit room 312 any time of the day. The resounding din may resemble that of a boiler factory, but beneath the seemingly uncoordinated bedlam, genius is at work.

As the layman stands on this sacred ground, he is amazed and bewildered as the busily working staff covers copy, hides pictures, and shuts up like a clam. Explanation is simple, however, for staff members are sworn to such secrecy that they feel guilty if their left hand knows what its right is doing.

With hat in hand, the former ingrate backs meekly away from the tirade of journalistic, and sometimes not so journalistic, language. Nothing is left but to wait for spring when the Pilot is published. Now aren't you glad you waited?

Walls Brighten Year's Outlook

Whether it was the new pastel wall harmonies and the asphalt tile floor or the effects of the hard-working club members, the Library Club has had an extremely successful year.

Book Week, the highlight of the year, meant hours of work for the committees. The theme, "Books are Bridges," was carried out in an exhibit, an assembly, and a tea.

The two social events of the year were the initiation and the pin banquet. The first of these functions welcomed in new members and the second honored graduating seniors. Those in the Library Club auxiliary who pass necessary requirements will fill next year's vacancies.

Money-making projects included the sale of Murray buttons, Christmas cards, carameled apples, and band concert tickets. The activities of the year added another milestone of service to the school, in this their twenty-first year.

Exploring Unknown Chapters

- Current magazines in the library are enjoyed by Patricia Carlson, Bill Lee, and Marcia Williams.
- Many busy hours are spent in the Library Club workroom. Here Jean Ansley files away old magazines while Allan Arnason and George Semple check out classroom sets.
- Library Club members stop to view their exhibit which carries out the Book Week theme, "Books are Bridges."

Chartered Course for Girls

Plato and Euclid proved that a triangle had a firm foundation, excellent balance, and was equal in all ways. Likewise, the three facets of the Girls' League triangle, friendship, loyalty, and purposefulness, have proved a firm foundation for this girls' organization. The three colors of this symbol are gold, blue, and white, representing courage, truth, and integrity. The symbol is original at Murray, designed by Helen Landis, a graduate of 1941.

Strictly female! Absolutely NO men allowed! This is the password of all members of Murray's Girls' League. This feminine group forms the largest organization at Murray. The third Wednesday of every month finds all girls in the school deserting the male members of their classes, and gathering in the auditorium.

October, the first meeting of the year, found Joyce Woodbury taking care of entertainment by playing her own piano composition, "The Little Moron Learns Boogie."

In November, Miss Florence Vest's expression classes amused everyone with a short skit, and Miss Audrey Kenevan arranged a musical program.

Are you a slick chick? Would you like to be what is known as a glamor girl? These questions were answered at the January meeting. Mrs. Sue Searborough, head of Fild Schlick's beauty salon, revealed many helpful beauty hints.

Sticky faces and sticky hands were the telltale marks on most of the students in February. The caramel apple sale was on! Anyone looking in room 210 those days saw Rita Dressler and Judy Stopf up to their noses in apples, with Marjorie Wetterstrom supervising the gooey goings-on. That same month, Girls' League celebrated its ninth birthday. April brought the new picture contest. What poses! What pictures! Its popularity may make it their annual event.

With the able assistance of Miss Catherine Daly, Girls' League adviser, this club had become Murray's most prominent feminine organization.

It was not beauty but originality that counted in the Girls' League Snapshot Contest. Looking over entries are, seated: Margery Finger, president; Marjorie Wetterstrom, program chairman; standing: Miss Catherine Daly, adviser; Rita Dressler, vice president; Judy Stopf, secretary; Joyce Woodbury, treasurer.

Quill and Scroll Scribbles

From the time they chew a pencil over their first headline, journalism students look forward to the Quill and Scroll initiation. The "B" average student must be on the Murcurie or Pilot business staff, or a contributor to one of the publications.

Besides their bi-annual initiation, spring finds them doubling as auctioneers as they sell souvenir Pilot pictures. As a service club the group checks alumni files and sponsors a creative writing contest each year.

Long before underwater pens had been invented, people of culture wrote with graceful quill pens on parchment scrolls. As time passed, their quill and scroll became a symbol of good writing.

When an international honor society was set up for high school journalism, the quill and scroll became its logical emblem. Pictured here are wearers of the time-honored badge.

Newly initiated Quill and Scroll members, Leroy Gardner and Janice Engebretson, receive their pins from Roger Adams and Geraldine Markley.

Plausible Planners

- Although only tacks and posters are visible, they are not the only properties of the Student Council Bulletin Board Committee. Its sole object is to display advertising for all worthwhile projects undertaken by any of Murray's clubs. Pictured here making pleasure out of work are Joe Horvath, Glenn Steinke, and Robert Joseph.
- Conflicting dates cause no headaches at Murray, because the Student Council eliminates all such possibilities by publishing an activity calendar. Here Alice Egan, Patricia Dyer, and Thomas Zwiener check last-minute entries.
- Proving their potential salesmanship, these three Student Council members, Pat MacDonald, Barbara Bjornstad, and Kyle Peterson, helped to make the Sunset Valley Barn Dance another successful venture for the club.

Student Solons

As usual it is the Student Council that gets order when confusion is at its height. September always brings the S.C. members the business of charting the lunch periods. That accomplished this year, Patricia Dyer, president, then counted the coin of the realm as she checked money from the second hand book store sale.

In November, the Student Council assisted the P.T.A. in the latter's money-making project of the year by selling one thousand tickets for the "Sunset Valley Barn Dance."

"Ahs" and "Ohs" were heard coming from the lips of extremely happy seniors in the late fall. The S.C. executive board voted in a new passing schedule for assemblies. At last the upper classmen were assured their assigned seats. The junior high students had to make the best of it and look forward to the day when they could be in the same enviable position.

Posters! That is the password for S.C. secrets. A special committee sees to it that all posters are properly displayed, and that bulletin boards are kept in proper style.

Another helpful project of this group is the school activity calendar, and this year it became a handy reference for more than one organization.

In May the additional members were voted to the board to replace the retiring seniors. As the law-making organization of our high school, the Student Council executive board is a responsible unit of Murray.

The S.C. group turned to a lighter side in May when it held its annual banquet. Here Mrs. Ruth Eddy, adviser, and the board made merry while they turned their thoughts to next year by electing the 1947-48 officers.

Horizons Unlimited in Service

"Look, the Red Cross!" Many times this cry of joy has been raised. There is good reason, too, for wherever disease or disaster aids the grim reaper, the Red Cross is close behind performing its errands of mercy.

Everyone is familiar with the work done by the International Red Cross in the last war, but behind the scenes are people of all ages. Here at Murray, the students have gone far in aiding the local Red Cross. Our Red Cross representatives have filled overseas boxes, and collected magazines, playing cards, and games for local veterans hospitals. This is in addition to their usual work schedule and fall collection.

Gathering together the students whose abilities had not be recognized before, the Red Cross conducted a talent show March 4. The proceeds, of course, went to the main offices of this mercy organization.

Knows All, Tells All

Little bees have nothing on the Murcurie Staff on deadline day. With proverbial industry, they fan their way through copy, checking and re-checking. "We go to press tomorrow," can be either a hymn of satisfaction, or a deeper tone of woe. Nary a drone can be found in this hive, for Miss Margaret Glenn, Queen Bee of the staff, has long since learned the technique of eliminating such lazy characters.

The little reporter bees buzz in importantly with their quota of news; the page planners soar furiously here and there trying to fit their jig-saw puzzle of articles together; the art editor rushes in with last minute cuts; and, as the deadline hour draws near, the hum grows louder and more constant, and Geraldine Markley, editor, has the Murcurie off to the printer.

Over the creative glamour there is a metallic click, as Miss Elsea Peterson's business staff brings in the golden coin which pays for the Murcurie. But, as with bees, there is no rest for the busy staff. They must start on the next month's issue almost as soon as they are congratulated for the excellence of the present one.

"Hear ye! Hear ye! A proclamation to all young men of good character and fine physique." The national Young Men's Christian Association's announcement that it was going to open a branch in the high school was met by immediate approval. As a result, some twenty-three young men at Murray have answered this call.

Board Plans Valentine Dance

Already fifteen clubs in St. Paul have formed leagues for friendly games of basketball, swimming, and all the other sports that boys enjoy. Murray now has only a basketball league, but the club members have been clamoring for a chance to show their skill in other sports as well.

The Murray club does not confine itself to galloping around basketball courts in shorts, however. They proved February 14 that as a social group they were second to none. Sponsoring the Valentine's Day dance, the boys proved themselves excellent hosts, and guests were sorry when the orchestra called it a night.

The fact is proudly pointed out that the Hi-Y is not only a national organization, but international as well.

Mr. Henry Soderberg, who spoke before an assembly here, declared that were it not for the Hi-Y and other like organizations, many soldiers captured by the Nazis would have suffered greatly. The YMCA furnished amusements, food, clothing, and communication facilities.

As their pledge states, they create, maintain, and extend, throughout the school and community, better standards of Christian living.

Rocky Start -- Rollicking Finish

As the pocket edition is to a best seller, so the Junior Band is to the Senior Band. There is the same high quality, but smaller in size! These musicians are the backbone of future Murray bands. Demonstrating their abilities here are Marjorie Wacklin, James Preus, and Roy Milton, clarinetist, flutist, and baritone horn soloist respectively.

The big event for these seventh, eighth, and ninth graders, however, was their special concert given for their classmates and parents on March 12.

In addition to those pictured, featured members were Esther Burgess, Gail Holzinger and the trumpet duet, Patsy Carlson and Charles Hedenstrom.

Strike up the band! A shopworn phrase, this, but it takes on a special significance when it is Murray's Senior Band that is ringing out. When Miss Audrey Keneven leads the sixty-eight members in "Colors are Flying," it is a disloyal Murrayite who does not feel a swell of pride.

This year, in addition to entertaining the whole school at assemblies, the Band gave two assembly concerts at other schools.

March found the Band at Marshall High School, and in April, they serenaded Humboldt High School. And, of course, the annual Spring band concert, presented May 1 and 2, was a fitting display of talent.

Not only can Murray boast an excellent concert band, but it has also become a marching unit. Resplendent in new uniforms, the marching band made its first public appearance at the University of Minnesota Agricultural School's Campus Day in May.

Something to Sing About

Although it is doubtful whether "music has charms to sooth the savage beast," there is no doubt that the Murray choir has a miraculous way of soothing troubled minds. Underclassmen forget to snap their bubblegum, the boys stop flexing their muscles and winking at the girls, while the girls pass the acid test by maintaining complete silence.

In October the choir sang with the all-state high school chorus for the annual meeting of the Minnesota Education Association. Various members of the choir again proved their merit by performing for the Athletic Club Banquet, the Guttersen School P.T.A., the American Legion Auxiliary, the St. Anthony Park Legion Post No. 8, and collaborated with the Murray band in the annual spring band concert. In addition, individuals and smaller ensembles from the choir presented other programs for various community activities and school assemblies. It is superior performance that keeps the Murray choir in constant demand, not only here, but in other parts of the city. Turning its talents toward radio, the Murray choir was featured February fourth, on the radio program, "Salute to the Schools."

Joining in a community project, the choir appeared with the St. Anthony Park American Legion Band on February twenty-first and for senior night at the P.T.A.

Under the capable direction of Helen McGeever, the Murray choir produced the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera, "The Mikado," with full orchestral accompaniment. "The Mikado," with a Japanese background and oriental atmosphere, has very little dialogue and gave the choir ample opportunity to display their vocal talents.

Now commencement is not far away and school life would not be complete for seniors if the choir did not participate at this time. At present choristers are busily engaged in preparing for their last appearances of the year, baccalaureate services, and commencement.

Quest for the Best

Demonstrating that they too could give a successful musical performance with scenery and costumes, the "B" choir, for the first time this year, presented a program for a student assembly and the P.T.A. "The Harvest," a four part cantata for mixed voices by Wilcox and Kountz was given under the direction of Helen McGeever.

The prologue which opened "The Harvest" set the general atmosphere for the production and introduced the "Song of Thanksgiving." "Autumn Splendor" conveyed to the audience a choral picture of the beauty of the fields and harvest. A touch of sentiment was breathed in "Fair Harvest Moon" which made way for a brisk and rollicking folk dance. The male voices were heard alone in "The Hunter's Horn," and the girls' chorus sang the lilting madrigal, "Join in the Harvest Dancing."

This introduced a fast-moving carnival scene and gradually merged into the solemn dignity of "The Song of Thanksgiving" which brought the cantata to a close.

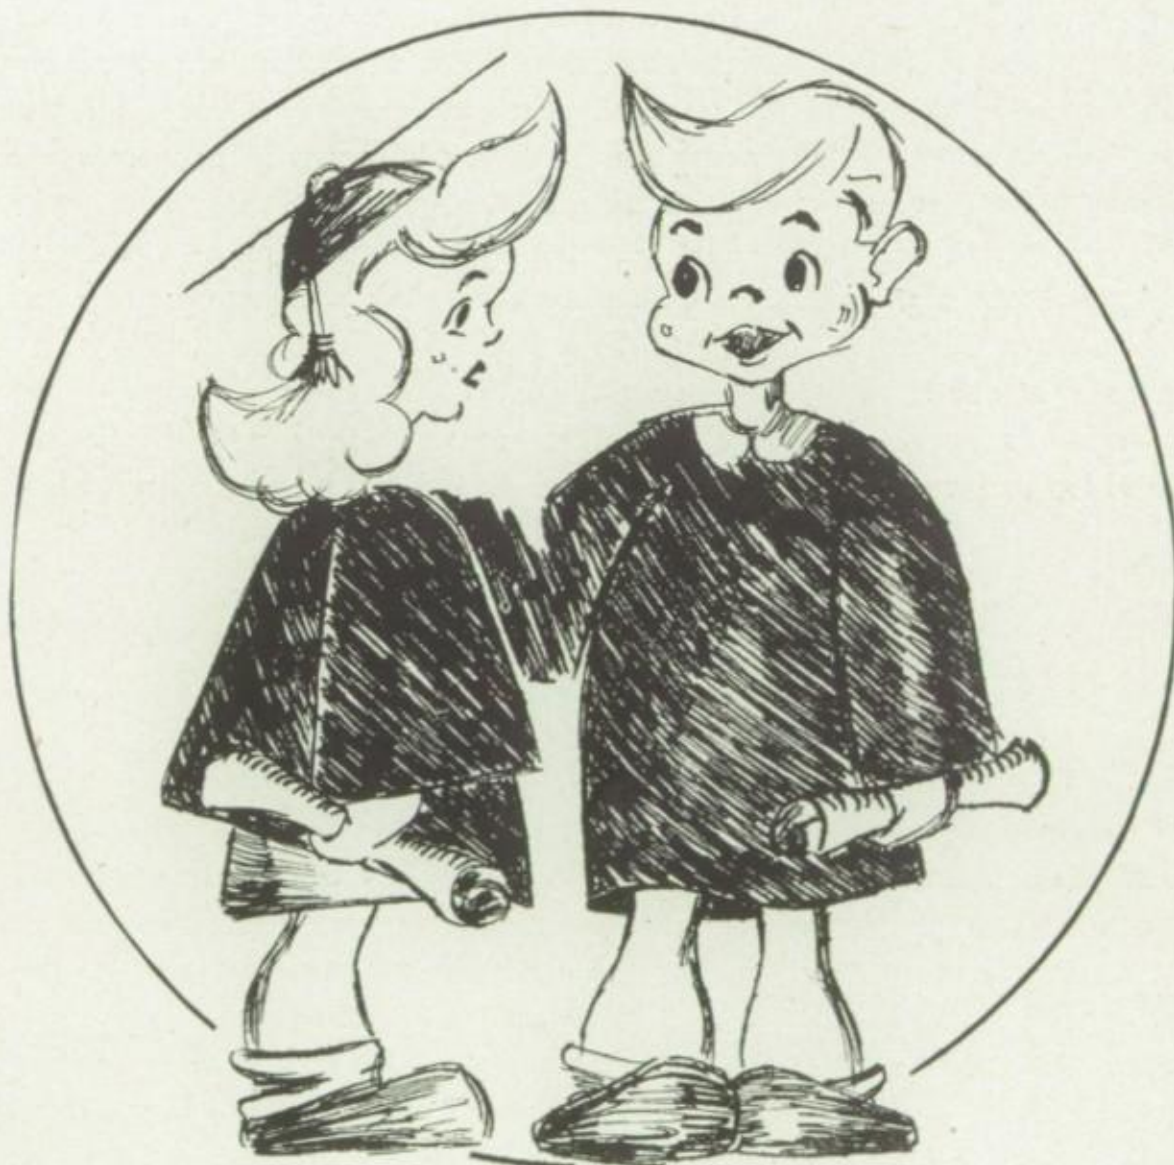

Majors Tough

- Turn about is fair play. Mr. Hubert Kuefler explains the intricacies of one of the machines in his department to Mr. George Bergup, wood shop instructor.
- These teachers are not baffled by bugs, beetles, test tubes, or formulas. Mr. Bernard Quinn, Mr. Albert Rother, and Miss Gladys Rose impart much of their scientific knowledge to many eager students.

Tests Tricky

- Mutual book interests are shared by these English teachers in their free periods. Here Miss Mabel Surratt, Miss Elsea Peterson, Miss Constance Howe, Mrs. Cora Halvorson, and Mrs. Mary Harmon discuss the merits of several library novels.
- Mathematics looks as if it were fun if the expressions on the faces of Miss Olive Batschlet and Miss Louise Smith are any indication.

How We Look

Miracles Do Happen

As our graduation date approaches, we as seniors will always remember our high school days as the most important and unforgettable in our lives. They have been filled with events and friends that will be recalled by us often.

In the eventful year of 1943, we began high school. Meeting new friends and becoming adjusted to the changes were only a few of the experiences of the years. We numbered over two hundred twenty-five, and became the largest class in the school.

As sophomores, we began to take an active part in the chief activities of the school. We elected our Student Council Executive Board Representatives and some of us became members of the Library Club.

With Miss Eleanor Steelsmith, selected as our class adviser, we became an organized class as juniors. Robert Brace was elected president and led us through the year.

A theater party, a barn dance, and a vaudeville marked the year as a great success.

The final event was the Junior-Senior Prom held in the Commodore Hotel on May twenty-fourth. To carry out the gay "Fiesta" theme, colorful Mexican decorations adorned the room.

Before we realized it, we were promoted into our twelfth and final year. Earl Paquin, our class president, called our first meeting to order on January twenty-fourth, 1947. Numerous plans were suggested for coming events.

The presentation of the class play, "Come Rain or Shine," a three act light comedy, took place on January thirtieth and thirty-first. A double cast was chosen for the entire production.

We want to extend our sincerest thanks to both the teachers and the students who have helped to make our high school days a great success.

LEADERS THREE!

Problems may be trivial or great depending upon the issues involved. Whatever they are, leaders enjoy consulting Mr. H. E. Hillard, our principal, who from his storehouse of wisdom can always find a solution or point a way.

Here, Patricia Dyer, Student Council president, and Earl Paquin, president of the Senior Class, are in conference with "His Honor"—our leader, judge and friend.

To the Seniors of 1947 - -

Education is no longer an opportunity; it is an economic necessity so created by the scientific era in which we are living and making history.

No longer are we isolated communities, states, or nations. No longer are we independent as to the needs of life. We are an interrelated "One World" in which we must take our places.

Youth always meets the challenge of any age, but in no other to date has it been so important to appreciate and understand the social and cultural life of every nation.

It is my wish, as you bring your high school days to a close, that you will see fit to find your place in this age of progress so that you may enrich your own life and those with whom you will live and work.

Sincerely,

H. E. HILLARD

Juniors Become Big Cogs in the Pilot Wheel

At elections held in October, an enthusiastic Junior Class chose for their chief executive Wallace Bell. Other officers elected were Ruth Fortmeyer, vice president; Valorie Johnson, secretary; Ronald Lokken, treasurer. Representatives from each junior home room were chosen to form a board which planned all our activities. With Mrs. Inez Gugisberg and Miss Gladys Rose as our able advisers, we then started our successful career as an organized class. We have established history in that this is the first time at Murray that there have been co-advisers of a class.

On Sadie Hawkin's Day, a dance was given for our benefit by the Canteen committee. The main feature of this event was the announcement of the winners of the "Lena the Hyena" drawing contest and the unveiling of the winning "Lenas". Lil' Abner and Daisy Mae were at last married at this Dogpatch dance.

In November we ordered our class rings and pins. After what seemed years, they were received by us on January tenth with the usual remarks of "Let me see your ring,"—or "What kind of a pin did you get?"

The date of that most important social event—the Junior-Senior Prom—is set for May twenty-third. The colorful theme will be carried out by the decorations in the Continental Room of the St. Paul Hotel. Harry Given's Orchestra has been named to supply the music.

Among our hours of fun, there have been moments of sadness. We pause to mourn the death of one of our classmates.

The Things We Do

It Happened Here

Each year finds Murray's denizens with old and new tricks up their sleeves and this year was no exception.

One new addition is the co-pilots, the junior counter-parts of the Pilot athletic teams. These mighty little midgets from the eighth grade may supply prize stock to future champion teams.

A more established institution is homecoming, with main interest centered on the queen contest with vigorous campaigns of pleading posters and side-splitting skits.

Murray personality, Bob Johnson, has gathered fame through his unofficial title of best-dressed man about school. Here Bob displays comparatively conservative togs from his wardrobe of pink shirts, plaid pants, and battered chapeaux.

City slickers were given the chance to don jeans and straw hats at the Sadie Hawkins' day party. Here the girls clap their way into the swing of things as open season is called on stags.

The Prom's the Thing

Fiesta! Gay multicolored flowers, huge fans and sombreros, and torrid music created a South of the Border atmosphere for the 1946 prom.

The annual prom is a high school tradition faithfully observed at Murray as elsewhere. The drawing near of prom time puts Murray males at a premium and brings dress suits out of moth-balls and new formals out of tissue paper and boxes. Pre-prom days find him brushing up on the latest dance steps and her trying the newest hairdoes in anticipation of the great day.

Much of the success of the 1946 prom was due to the combined efforts of the adviser, Miss Eleanor Steelsmith, and the hard-working prom committee, headed by John Raymond.

Robert Brace and Jeanne Malecha, the couple who led the grand march, head a line of other prom-goers.

Behind the Few students get behind the scenes to see what makes Murray tick, so we shall present some of the unsung heroes of the footlights.

It takes more than meets the eye to make a play. Jean Lewis undergoes the application of grease paint as Joan Vanouse and Miss Florence Vest prepare her for the glare and glamour of the stage.

The lot of shifting heavy scenery and adjusting spotlights falls on hard-working stage force members. Preparing props and special lighting effects for a dramatic production are George Pothén, Kenneth Miller, Lowell Munson, Bill Lewis, and Erwin Koch.

Dwight Rosenberg

The hot lunches students balance on trays first, second, or third lunch periods are the results of long hours of preparation. Miss Catherine McDonough, Mrs. Dora McCall, and Mrs. Vida Stiles convert ingredients in the raw to steaming hot dishes.

Usherettes Barbara Davis, Marilyn Gavin, Betty Lou Nelson, and Alice Krantz have a great following, for they guide theater-goers to their seats in Murray's auditorium.

Scenes

Under Mrs. Carlgren's supervision, office worker Carol Strand writes an excuse for Marcia Williams. Stenography students gain valuable experience through their work in the school office. Filing cards, answering phone calls, and typing bulletins comprise part of their duties.

The maintenance force finds numerous tasks to perform, including stoking the school furnace, sweeping the halls, and waxing the desks. Important to the well-being of the school are those whose work is never done, Mrs. Anna Jackson, Mr. Joe Thill, Mr. Vic DeZeil, Mr. John Elmond, and Mrs. Ellen Zeigler.

"A" choir members Charles Grose, Florence White, Kenneth Corsaw, and Marilyn Pilgren try on their best "go to meetin'" choir robes before a public appearance. The royal blue vestments require much care. They need cleaning, the gold collars must be washed, and the long pleats ironed.

Have you got it? The cheerleaders have, so let's go! It takes practice for the pepsters to perfect their maneuvers, but practice makes for noise. Coaxing a yell from the rooting section are Phyllis Dustin, Janis Thieme, Betty Matthews, first row, and Patt Greenwood, Bob Horswell, and Audrey Leppla, second row.

Robert Wahlstedt, Larry Kolb, Phyllis Perron, and Patricia Hayden survey homecoming posters decking the auditorium balcony. October was marked by poster-plastered hallways, campaign tags, a royal coronation, and the big game. The festivities were reigned over by Margery Finger and Karl Koenke.

Strike one, and we're out of school! The city-wide strike was no job for Murray teachers picketing in the cold December snow. Here two sympathetic students come to the rescue of Miss Constance Howe and Mrs. Helen McGeever with hot coffee and encouraging words.

Taking an order for Christmas cards from Charlotte Schuler are Bob Hayes and Gerry Busse while Roger Wood looks over the varied assortment of cards. The Christmas card sale brought cash to the Library Club and Pilot treasurers besides flooding the mails with clever cards.

"The line forms to the right—have your money ready, please." Jack Pearson displays his super-salesmanship as a group of eager basketball ticket buyers crowd about him.

All out for Murray! Be it June or January, each school morning finds a crowd of trolley-tramps disembarking from the gates of their yellow limousine with school books and other paraphernalia.

Sublease on Fun

Black and white evidence of Murray's widespread influence is displayed by Roger Adams. Seeing isn't always believing, though, for the bold headline was made-to-order for thirty-five cents.

Cupid's messenger, Carleton Vang, croons a singing valentine to Janet Lehman as part of the service of the Special Delivery Valentine Post Office and Messenger Service. Football Enlivens Fall Days Hampered by injuries and inexperience, the Murray gridgers completed a fair season in the fall of 1946. The highlight of the campaign was the 14-13 homecoming victory over Monroe.

The Pilots also gained victories over Humboldt and Johnson while tying Wilson. The squad dropped decisions to Marshall, Central, and Washington.

Red Raymond scored Murray's only tally as the gridmen dropped their first contest to Central, 27-7. The Pilots lost to St. Cloud Tech and fought favored Wilson to a scoreless deadlock before winning their first contest over Johnson, 7-0. A lateral from Tom Zwiener to Red Raymond was the play that scored the winning touchdown for Murray.

Strike for Pay Dirt

Two brilliant passes from Tom Zwiener to Ralph De Young and two perfect place kicks off the toe of Red Nelson were responsible for the thrilling 14-13 win over Monroe in Murray's homecoming game.

Murray dropped the next game to Marshall by a 29-12 count. The Pilots followed this loss by handing Humboldt a stinging 25-0 beating. Gordy Lindgren, Dick Kensler, and Red Raymond all figured in Murray's scoring.

Murray finished off the season in sixth place by losing to Washington, 27-18. Murray took an early lead, but Ed Weiss, Washington's "one man gang", was too much for the Pilots. Undefeated in conference play, Harding emerged as city champions.

The Ice Age Cometh

The 1946-47 edition of Murray's hockey team saved itself from the cellar spot by winning its final conference contest from Marshall.

The rinkmen suffered a second period lapse in which Mechanic Arts scored four goals to top the Pilots 5-1 in their first game.

Murray continued its losing ways by dropping the next contest to Washington by a 4-0 count. Frank Machioch scored 3 goals for the Presidents in the first period. Wilson dropped the pucksters, 3-1. Jack Pearson scored the goal on an assist from Jack Anderson and Bob Johnson.

Monroe blanked the Pilots, 4-0, and Johnson, the city champions, dropped Murray by a 6-0 count.

Murray defeated Marshall in its last game, 3-1. Jack Pearson made one goal and two assists while Bob Johnson and Bryan McGroarty made the other tallies. The Pilots ended up in ninth place with one win and five losses in conference play.

After winning the city championship, Johnson went on to win the district and regional crowns. The Governors defeated Rosseau, 2-1, to become the state high school champions.

A hockey practice ends in a spill for Jack Anderson, as Dick Holmsten and Jack Pearson fight for possession of the puck.

Basketball Entertains Fans

Murray suffered its worst basketball season in the history of the school during the 1946-47 campaign. The Pilots dropped every game of their conference schedule and all but one in non-conference competition.

The diminutive Pilots lost the opener in a thrilling contest to a rangy Wilson team, 35-30. The Pilots lost another close one, this time to Central, 32-28.

Murray suffered one of the worst defeats in its history to a strong Washington five, 40-17. Led by their sensational sophomore center, Jim Fritche, Humholdt eked out a 37-35 victory over the Pilots. Murray held a six-point lead early in the game but soon fell victim to the potent Indian attack.

Monroe whipped Murray, 38-20. Al Unise sparked the winners with 15 points. Harding led all the way to trounce Murray by a 43-30 margin.

Pat Murphy scored 33 points to help Johnson down the Pilots, 46-24. Pat set a new individual record which stood throughout the season.

Swish! Another score. Charles Grose awaits the rebound.

"Oh no you don't," shouts Karl Koencke, as he attempts to retrieve the ball for Murray.

Both teams are right on their toes for this one.

Marshall took one more step to the city basketball crown by crushing the Pilots, 51-29. The Greyhound fast break proved to be very effective with Dick Robinson scoring 16 points. Mechanics handed the Pilots their last conference defeat, 51-33. Lloyd Sandstrom scored 25 points.

In non-conference play Murray lost to Willmar, 50-42. The out-state five staged a 30-point second half rally to increase their half-time lead of two points.

Red Nelson of Murray and Ellsworth's Glen Tobias shared scoring honors with 18 points each as Ellsworth downed the Pilots, 48-40.

Murray's only win of the season came when the Pilots upset a highly touted Litchfield team at Minnesota's fieldhouse, 47-33. Veteran Karl Koenke led Murray's scoring with 11 points. Red Nelson and Norm Rynard each tallied 9.

Are We Champions?

Gremlins in the form of "old man weather" crushed the hopes of having at least one championship in sports at Murray. Murray's 1946-47 ski team was loaded with talent which made them strong title contenders.

In the only meet of the season, a five-team non-conference meet with Johnson, Humboldt, Wilson, and Washington, the Pilots completely outclassed their opposition. Murray won two of the three events and placed high in the third. The team's 32 points were more than those totaled by the other four squads. Rudy Theis and Bob Gordenier were the important factors in this sweeping victory. The meet was held at Como Park.

From this time on the weather seemed to be against the Pilots as cold weather and a conspicuous lack of snow prevented any conference meets.

Another opportunity for glory was missed when the proper authorities failed to inform Murray's ski team of the state tournament. Johnson's team, which Murray had beaten previously, took sixth place honors in the state meet.

Tracksters Finish Second --

TRACK

Sparked by the return of Coach Ralph Engebretson from the navy and thirteen lettermen, the Pilot track team made a fine showing in 1946.

The trackmen took sixth place in both the Metropolitan and Carleton meets. Dick Alquist became the 1946 shot put champion and Ron Cunningham took third place in the high hurdles at the state meet.

In duel meets, the Pilots conquered Stillwater, Johnson, South St. Paul, Central, and Wilson while losing only to White Bear.

The title-destined Pilots fell down on the last stop to the city championship by losing to Marshall, 41-33, in the city meet and ending up in second place in the conference standings. Firsts were taken in the 200 low hurdles and 120 highs by Bob Wellsley and Ron Cunningham. Dick Alquist put the shot 49'2" to give the squad another first. The relay team took a close second place.

Linkmen Take Third

GOLF

Murray's 1946 golf team opened its season with a successful non-conference campaign in which they defeated U High, Minneapolis Marshall, and Breck, losing only to Cretin.

The linksmen scored a win over Wilson by forfeit before losing to Washington, 13½-1½, and Central, 9½-5½. Following their double setback the golfers trounced Monroe, 12½-2½. Another win was scored over Humboldt by a close 8-7 count. Johnson took another step towards the city championship by handing the Pilots a 14-1 licking. Murray copped third place with four wins and three set-backs by soundly defeating Marshall in their final conference contest.

Len Olson, team captain, consistently captured medalist honors, followed closely by Tom Peterson and Dave Bear. The team made a fine showing considering that they worked together without a coach.

It's Power on Bases and Courts

BASEBALL

The 1946 baseball team started off with three non-conference wins, two over Roosevelt and one over South St. Paul.

In their conference opener, Murray defeated Monroe, 5-1. Pitcher Norm Rynard had fine support as the team made three double plays. Johnson, in the second game, blasted Murray, 13-6.

Norm Rynard pitched the Pilots to their second win, a 10-0 shut-out victory over Marshall.

Murray errors aided the Humboldt Indians to defeat the Pilots, 7-4, in one of the heartbreakers of the season. Failing to cash in on scoring opportunities galore, the team fell before Mechanic Arts, 14-8. Murray again fell apart in their fielding as they lost to Central, 7-1.

In a give and take game, the Pilots tipped Harding, 6-4. Murray lost their last two games to Wilson, 9-4, and Washington, 16-3. The sluggers finished the season in a tie for fifth place.

TENNIS

Murray's tennis team, troubled by its inexperience and lack of proper coaching, dropped every match of its seven game schedule. Wally Hughes, tennis captain, assumed coaching responsibilities and did a fine job of rounding the team into shape and making matches with other schools.

The Pilots dropped their two non-conference, warm-up matches to U High and Cretin. Chuck Grose and Wally Hughes teamed up to gain a point for Murray by winning a doubles match against Cretin. Murray dropped its first conference tilt to Monroe. Hughes gained another point for the Pilots by securing a victory against Monroe in a singles match. Johnson and Humboldt, city co-champions, shut out the Murray racketmen by a 5-0 counts. Hughes again stood out for Murray in the Central match when he won his singles match only to lose, 4-1. In its last game of the season, against Marshall, the team lost to the Greyhounds by a 3-2 count. Dick de Neui took a singles match. Other team members were Bob Cook and John Fowler.

Their Way to Victory

Murray's 1946-47 swimming team did not gain a great deal of acclaim but the young tankmen did gain experience. Hampered by the loss of all but one of its 1945-1946 lettermen the team was made up largely of underclassmen.

The swimmers dropped their first meet, a non-conference one with Johnson, by a 37-29 count. Central defeated Murray in both teams' conference opener. The Minutemen rolled over Murray, 57-18.

Murray bounced back to defeat Washington. The Pilots won the meet by a 39-36 score. The tankmen then fell before Wilson, 39-36.

Murray gained its second win over Marshall. George Adam, Ken Carlson, Jim Barnes, Jim Harmon, and Denis Bakke were the main factors in the 41-33 win.

In their final meet the team lost to Harding, 46-29. Murray gained a tie for fifth place by virtue of two wins and three losses. The tankmen gained two points in the city meet, taking eighth place.

The swimmers will suffer the loss of only one graduating senior, George Adam. The remainder of the team will be back for the 1947-48 season.

No world records were shattered, but the Murray tankmen made a fine showing for the season.

Here they are—the Murray tankmen ready for an hour's practice. Although the boys were handicapped by lack of a nearby swimming pool, they turned out regularly at the downtown YMCA for practices. Student enthusiasm for this sport is one reason why St. Paul schools should have adequate facilities.

Runaways -- The Cross Country Boys

Unsung heroes of Murray athletics were the boys on the cross-country team.

Paced by Charles Grose and Bob Christensen, the runners won dual meets from Marshall and Wilson. All dual meets were held at Central Stadium during conference football games. The distance men took sixth place in the city meet.

The outlook for Murray's future cross-country teams is bright as the entire team will return next year.

What would Murray be without homecoming? This feature attraction of the fall season is sponsored by the "M" Club and the G.A.A., the two athletic associations of the school. Those "M's" you see on sweaters have been earned the hard way, these Murray athletes will declare. Both boys and girls earn their letters for outstanding achievements in athletics.

Swimming, bowling, horseback riding, soccer, and basketball were sports which occupied the time of G.A.A. members every Monday and Wednesday afternoon. A new mirror for the girls' locker room was purchased by the club this year.

"M" Club officers were president, Karl Koenke; Jack Pearson, vice president and Joe Horvath, secretary-treasurer. Successful undertakings for the two organizations this year were the Homecoming Dance and their annual Spring Sports Banquet.

Advisers of the clubs are Mrs. Inez Gugisberg and Mr. Ralph Engebretson.

Murray Seniors

Greetings From

The Murray High School Parent-Teacher Board

This year Murray's P.T.A. participated actively in the campaign for better schools. We hope that when this book is published the school crisis of our city will be solved.

Included in our year's programs were an open house and reception for the teachers and two student sponsored programs. One "Books are Bridges" was presented by the Library Club. The second included a style show by the home economics classes and a senior social studies class in action. Speakers on new trends in education were also part of the year's program. On May sixth the P.T.A. played hostess to the seniors.

The Murray P.T.A. wishes success and happiness to the graduates of 1947.

Before the Presses Roll . . .

. . . a great share of the work done on the Pilot and the Murcurie takes place at North Central Publishing Company. Here both publications are printed, checked, and proofed. Most papers and yearbooks of the St. Paul high schools are done at North Central. The busy hum of the machines and the carefully trained employees constantly remind one that excellent work is being done on all the jobs the firm undertakes. Everyone takes an active interest in each individual production, and countless professional suggestions are given willingly.

Shown here are Geraldine Markley and Joan Janneck as they go over a press form with Mr. Robert Slagle, printer.
